

A Donkey Story

There was once a donkey with no name, who live in a village with an old man. She worked hard for many years.

One day the old man told the donkey with no name that she was going to be replaced with a younger, stronger and bigger donkey. The donkey was sad she liked working and going to the fields. One day the old man saw how sad the donkey was and told her she was going to go to a new home with a young boy. This boy when he saw the donkey was so happy he decided to give her a name, Station of Happiness. The donkey loved this name and the boy that took good care of her. She worked hard for this boy giving people rides. Station of Happiness lived a very happy life with the boy at her new home for many years.
